

Please keep the "Do Not Call" in operation. We do not enjoy picking up the phone only to hear a sales pitch. We do not like getting up from the dinner table either only to hear someone who only speaks broken english trying to sell something that we don't want. If I really want something I can go to the "Internet" and search for it. Why would you want to tie up a phone line with an unwanted call when you have the right to go to the internet and rear all the "POP UPS"? How about looking into that mess?
